GRIMES URGES SOUND BASIS FOR FARMING

STATE LAWMAKER APPEARS BEFORE HOUSE AGRICULTURE COMMITTEE

Early this week, the House of Representatives Agriculture Committee which is making a grass-roots tour of the nation to find out what the farmers are thinking about, stopped off in Indianapolis and heard a score of Indiana farmers.

Among those heard was David L. Grimes, Putnam county representative in the Indiana legislature, and a livestock and grain farmer of the county. In part, Mr. Grimes told the committee:

We have three main sources of new wealth, the soil, the mines and the sea. All of our industries depend on these three for their source of supply of raw materials. The largest supply comes from the soil in the form of agricultural products. Therefore, it is imperative that agriculture be kept on a sound basis; for agriculture, more than any other segment of our economy, is subject to hazards beyond its control. A prosperity brought about by subsidies is not good enough nor sound enough for agriculture. Subsidies, like sedatives, give only temporary relief and at times may be necessary but they cannot be relied upon for a permanent cure. Before we can prescribe a cure, we must first diagnose the case.

American agriculture in the beginning was on a self-sufficing basis. Two-hundred years or more ago most manufacturing was done on the farms. Farm families made wool, flax and cotton into cloth and made their own clothing; ground their own meal and flour; processed and preserved their own meat; built their own crude homes; obtained fuel direct from nature. Eighty-five percent of the people lived on farms. They produced enough surplus for the other fifteen percent living in towns and cities.

In the early days farmers had problems, of course. However, in order to solve them, many decided to go into other lines of work and those who continued farming moved farther west away from their problems and cleared a new patch of ground where the soil was fertile and crop yields were high. This westward movement continued and cities and towns sprung up and as time went on more and more farmers left the fields to go into other lines of work. We find ourselves today where we can no longer move away from our problems, but must solve them where we are. Many schemes have been devised by our federal government to subsidize agriculture in an attempt to put farming on an equal basis with other lines of industry but as agriculture has been subsidized, so too, have other groups until today nearly every industry receives subsidy in one way or another. Now what has been the effect? As more programs are developed in government, more bureaus are formed and more people are given jobs and more taxes have to be raised to pay for more services of people employed by the federal government.

Now, who pays the taxes? We have approximately eighty million people in the United States twenty-one years old or older. We have between two and three million people working for the federal government alone (not counting the armed forces) and if we include those who work for each of the state governments, county, city and township, I would estimate that this figure would be increased to ten million or more people who would receive salaries from taxes. Now on the other side of the ledger we have another fifteen million people of voting age who are on welfare relief, or receive social security, unemployment compensations, pensions, or some other form of social income or aid. This leaves fifty-five million people that are bearing the tax load for the entire population. But that is not all. Out of this fifty-five million a large number are permitted to pass their taxes on to the consumer. Agriculture is

Central National Bank Robbed By Dillinger Gang 20 Years Ago Today

Twenty years ago today, October 23, 1933, at 2:45 p. m., four unmasked bandits walked into the Central National Bank and staged one of the biggest holdups in the history of the notorious Dillinger gang. More than $75,000 in cash and bonds were taken by the group which included John Dillinger, Harry Pierpont, Walter Dietrich and Harry Copeland.

They parked their Studebaker sedan just west of the bank on Jackson street. Dillinger, Pierpont and Dietrich went into the bank proper while Copeland stood just inside the door. They wore overcoats and carried sub-machine guns.

The first anyone knew a holdup was in progress was when one of the men handed Ward Mayhall a $20 bill and asked him if it was any good. Mr. Mayhall referred the man to Harry Wells, the cashier. Instead of going to Mr. Wells' cage, the man stepped back and pointed his gun at Mayhall. At the same time another of the gang jumped over the railing and entered the teller's cage.

A dozen customers and bank employees were herded behind the iron grill work of the vault room by the third gangster. The bandits worked calmly and without haste and made a clean sweep of the bank.

Among the unfortunate customers to enter the bank during the robbery was Hugh Hammond, district agent for the Sinclair Oil Company. The bandits took $300 in deposit money from him. Rex Thornton, who was manager of the A. & P. store, was snatched by the gangsters. Elmer Seller, post office clerk, was deprived of $330 in postal receipts. Roy Elder, manager of the Oakley store, was struck in the chest by the butt of a machine gun wielded by one of the robbers.

One of the fortunate customers was Miss Catherine Tillotson of the treasurer's office at DePauw University. Miss Tillotson reached the bank with college money just after the gang made their getaway.

William Stiles took the chance of being shot while the holdup was in progress when he slowly made his way to the rear of the group herded back of the grill work. He then quietly slipped down the stairs and made his way through the basement door on Jackson street. He went to at least two places hunting back to throw under the wheels of the bandit car. The gang, however, got away before Mr. Stiles succeeded in his search.

The bandit car was driven east on Washington street and south on Bloomington to the Pennsylvania railroad crossing which was blocked by a train. The bandits turned west following Ferry street to the South Jackson street road and then headed in the direction of Limestone. Hurriedly organized searching parties failed to find any trace of them.

Within a matter of minutes Greencastle and the Dillinger gang were on the front pages of every big city newspaper in the nation. Radio stations from coast to coast and border-to-border devoted the greater portion of their evening news broadcasts to the daring holdup.

It was an experience that will never be forgotten by Kenneth E. West and Miss Edith Brown, in addition to Mr. Mayhall and Mr. Wells, who are all still associated with the Central Bank

AUTHORITY ON 'COLD WAR' TO SPEAK AT DPU

An explanation of anti-Communist activity "behind the Iron Curtain" will be given at DePauw University Friday, Oct. 23, by Frank R. Barnett, professor-on-leave from Wabash College and an authority on cold war strategy.

Barnett will address a special convocation in Meharry Hall at 10 a. m. on "Fourth Dimensional Warfare," a study of modern conspiracy involving psychological and economic warfare.

A Rhodes Scholar who joined the Wabash staff in 1949, Barnett was granted a leave of absence two years later to work in Washington, D. C., as an unpaid "citizen-lobbyist."

While in the capital he lobbied for an appropriation to aid resistance movements against the Soviet Union. Congress eventually approved an amendment to the Mutual Security Bill of 1951 authorizing 100 million dollars for that purpose.

Later Barnett became director of the American Friends for Russian Freedom, a non-profit organization which provides food, clothing, language training and other anti-Communist Russian escapes in Germany.

He is a World War II veteran who served as a Russian interpreter for the 69th Infantry Division and an ex-military government official in Berlin.

Kersey Leases Second Location

Kersey Music Store has taken over the frame building on West Walnut street at the rear of the Commercial Hotel, and in a few days expects to open this location for display and repair services. This new location will be in addition to the larger store at 28 South Jackson street.

According to Kenneth Kersey, it was decided to expand the facilities as more space was needed for repair services and display, especially in the case of television. One of the features of the West Walnut street store will be a display of television so that a demonstration may be given similar to viewing in one's own home. Roy Lee Hartman will be in charge of the new store and will be assisted by two experienced repair service men.

The West Walnut street building is now being altered and refinished, both inside and out, for occupancy by the Kersey Music Store.

DRIVER ARRESTED
Robert L. Brewster, 24, city, was arrested by local officers Thursday night on a drunken driving charge. Brewster was taken into custody on East Washington street and lodged in the Putnam county jail.

Brewster was fined $25 and costs Friday in J. P. Court and his driver's license was revoked for two years.

CHAS. MEIKEL OBSERVES HIS 88TH BIRTHDAY

Charles Meikel observed his 88th birthday yesterday. He worked as usual on his birthday. About the only thing he has quit doing in recent years is to go up the Odd Fellows lodge steps three at a time. He now climbs the stairs one at a time and they are long ones. He has been doing this several times a week for the past 65 years. He estimates he has climbed the steps enough times to be thousands of miles high if they were laid end to end.

About the only time Mr. Meikel has missed church unless ill, was a couple of years ago when he overlooked changing his clock when daylight savings time went into effect. He got to church just an hour late.

Breaks 30-Year Judging Record

Morris McGaughey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul McGaughey of Russellville, and a senior in Purdue University, has won an honor that comes to but few students of animal husbandry or livestock judging.

McGaughey broke a 30 year record at the American Royal Intercollegiate Livestock Judging contest. He was the individual high scorer at the livestock judging, including hog and quarter horse judging contest at the Royal livestock show in Kansas City, hitting the high mark of 957 points out of a possible 1,000.

McGaughey was a member of the Purdue University Livestock Judging team, which as a team, lost to the Iowa University, Texas Tech. and Mississippi University. Purdue scored 4516 points out of a possible five thousand.

Expert Discusses Test Plot Corn

M. O. Pence, head of the Agronomy Department of Purdue University, spoke on the various varieties of corn growing on the test plot by Gene Fredrick in the field south of the Crows Bridge Thursday afternoon. The plot was planted through the co-operation of K. W. Harris, County Extension officer and the agricultural students of the high school.

The test hills were hand planted but was cultivated the same as the rest of the field. The yield ranged from 85 bushels per acre to 113 bushels. The moisture content was extremely low, ranging down to 13.75 per cent.

Some of the varieties grown are new and will not be on the market for general use until next year. Others were the tested and well known species and some are in the experimental stage now, and may not be on the market for some time.

Mr. Pence said the farmers in getting seed corn for another year should be interested in the possible yield, the maturity of the variety, how it stands up in the field, whether it husks easy or hard, and the ability to resist disease. These are all important in seeking seed corn and all points should be well considered by every buyer of seed.

The second youth, who is only 15 years of age, was before Judge Allee on Thursday. The lad was placed under his father's care and told to stay at home until after Halloween is over.

Stalemate In Trieste Crisis

LONDON, Oct. 23.—(UP)—Informed sources reported today the Western powers have reached a stalemate in their joint efforts to settle the explosive Trieste question.

The sources said the Italian and Yugoslav governments have refused to retreat from their "tough" stands and the latest concessions by the two nations have been too slender for a five-power conference.

Thus, the Big Three Western powers have decided to withhold invitations to talks until Italy and Yugoslavia agree upon the conditions for such a parity.

However, the United States, Britain and France are continuing to consult with each other and urge Italy and Yugoslavia to cooperate in the interest of an acceptable settlement, official sources said.

The crisis began Oct. 8 when the United States and Britain decided to hand Zone A of divided Trieste to the Italians.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 23 (UP).—Chairman Alexander Wiley, R. Wis., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said today the United States would forfeit world leadership if it withdrew from the United Nations over the admission of Communist China.

Wiley discussed the issue reiterating his opposition to a U. N. seat for Red China in a speech prepared for the Indiana State Teachers Convention.

CONNERSVILLE STRIKERS AGREE TO 3-DAY TRUCE

100 STATE TROOPERS TO BE WITHDRAWN FOR TRAFFIC DUTY

CONNERSVILLE, Ind., Oct. 23 (UP).—An uneasy, three-way truce hung over the violence-ridden American Kitchens plant here today as officials hoped the "cooling-off" period may eventually result in settlement of the three month strike.

The truce was signed in governor Craig's statehouse office in Indianapolis late Thursday between management and labor representatives to avoid additional violence this weekend.

Craig said his only interest was to avoid bloodshed and to withdraw 100 state troopers stationed at the scene for highway patrol duty. The governor earlier ordered the plant closed to all but maintenance personnel after autos were overturned, windows shattered and workers injured in a clash between pickets and a back-to-work force Wednesday. Fourteen pickets were arrested in disorderly conduct charges.

The workers were on strike in a pension dispute. The truce was signed in an atmosphere of bitterness with plant officials taking a dim view of changes for a break in the tense situation.

The agreement, written by Attorney General Edwin K. Steers, provided:

1. The Striking CIO United Auto Workers will maintain no pickets in or about the plant during Oct. 23, 24, and 25.

2. American Kitchens, a division of Avco Manufacturing Co., will engage in no production or shipping operations during the three days.

3. Office, supervisory and maintenance personnel will be permitted to enter and leave the plant during the three days.

4. Labor, management, and the governor may station an observer at the plant to make sure that above conditions are upheld.

PADUCAH, Tex., Oct. 23 (UP).—Sen. Robert S. Kerr unleashed an attack on the farm policies of the Eisenhower administration, charging that farmers are now making less than during the depression.

The Oklahoma Democrat, addressing a farmers union meeting Thursday night, said suffering farmers are now getting their lowest percentage of the national income in 15 years.

He said the administration frankly admits it is trying to squeeze the "marginal farmer" out of business.

—GRIMES URGES

the only industry that is unable to follow this practice.

Each farmer in the United States pay two cents federal tax on every gallon of gasoline that he burns in the tractor while plowing his fields. This money is supposed to be used on the highways over our nation. It is the farmers responsibility to pay his share of the highway expense, but why should he be asked to pay two cents for every gallon of gasoline he uses in his tractor on the farm for highway purposes.

If the average farmer burns three-thousand gallons of gasoline a year in his tractor this would amount to sixty dollars a year for each farmer, an amount equal to or greater than the subsidy he receives.

Another inequity is brought about in the figuring of federal income taxes. A store or factory is usually an equipped building setting on a plot of ground no larger than the building. A store or factory is entitled to depreciate their entire investment in their business over a period of years. A farm is the farmer's factory but he is not permitted to depreciate the land which is the larger portion of his investment.

If we are to secure parity for agriculture, it cannot be figured on the basis of the 1910 to 1914 nor the 1935 to 1939 economy. It will have to be a parity based on modern times. In 1910 to 1914 very little farming, if any, was done with the use of tractors and machines. That was in the horse and buggy days and the farmer raised his own fuel in the form of feed for his horses. Now it is necessary for the farmer to purchase thousands of dollars worth of machinery and buy the fuel to run them which is an added expense as compared to the earlier period.

Also in 1910 to 1914 very few women were employed in business and the factory. The husband provided all of the income for the entire family. But now the laboring man and the business man obtains employment at full parity for himself, and his wife also can go out and get a job at full parity wages. But the farmer and his wife both work at home on the farm on one parity or less. Therefore when they say we have one-hundred percent of parity for agriculture we actually have only about fifty percent in the market place.

Now, what can be done about these problems?

1. Overhaul our tax structure. (a) Eliminate federal gasoline tax.

(b) Allow depreciation on farm land.

(c) Eliminate the passing on of taxes to the consumer.

(d) Have one tax collecting agency. (State).

2. Economize in government.

(a) Do away with duplicating services.

(b) Pensions and social security should be given to all or none.

3. Recalculate parity to include farmers' wives.

4. Control production according to the demand.

5. Expand research in marketing.

6. Do not use subsidies except when absolutely necessary.

Nor, continued the DePauw alumnus, will it be easy for Eisenhower to "get the Benson millstone off his neck, despite the pleas of Congressmen that it is carrying them down, too."

Some way may be found, thought Mahoney, to convince the Mormon elder that "he's needed in his church," adding that when the late President Roosevelt felt need to get rid of any one, he made him an ambassador and sent him far away.

Citing the case of Roosevelt sending Paul McNutt of Indiana to the Philippines and then asking Jim Farley if that were fair enough, Mahoney said, "It could happen again."

Paradoxically, the CBS commentator added, Benson actually is getting his brickbats for attempting to carry out the program set forth in the law.

Neither Mahoney nor the President believe, Mahoney said, that the vast-scale government storage of farm products is a sensible way to handle the problem, yet the farmers surveyed by the Congressional committee during its recent "grass roots" tour seem to be pretty firmly behind Ike and bitterly opposed to Benson.

Mahoney quoted Allan Kline, American Farm Bureau Federation head, as saying that the committee had made up its mind to continue price supports even before it started the tour, to which Mahoney added:

"If the committee does crucify Benson, it wants to be sure that it's done so in a democratic manner."

Team Rises And Falls With Aggressive Bidding

In an important team-of-four match, a team which had not been conceded a chance surprised everybody by reaching the semifinal round. And in that round they piled up a nice lead at the half-way point over a world's championship aggregation.

The bidding:

Dbl! All Pass
Aggressive bidding had put them in this enviable spot but near the end it was aggressive bidding that was their downfall. In this hand, Mr. Abel decided he had enough to compete after the opening one club bid. He elected to double for a takeout. Mr. Dale promptly redoubled. Possibly Mr. Truex should have passed, although the final result probably could not have been averted.

He decided on a one no trump bid rather than a spade bid. As you see, the spade bid would have been worse, if anything.

It is interesting to note both Mr. Masters and Mr. Dale had minimum hands for their respective calls on the first round of bidding. Yet they unhesitatingly doubled their opponents at the one level.

To take action like this and have it turn out successfully, you must find the right line of defense and find it early.

Mr. Masters found it here. He got off to the ten of spades opening. Mr. Truex won in his own hand with the king and led a heart. Mr. Masters went right in with the ace and led his last spade which was taken by dummy's ace.

Now Mr. Truex had no good lead from the board. He expected to find all the clubs behind him, just as they were. Finally, he led the king of hearts. There was a chance the queen would drop. When it didn't, he led a small heart, hoping the suit would break 3-3 and that the king of diamonds might be an entry to dummy later.

But he had won his last trick. Mr. Masters got two more heart tricks, then led the jack of diamonds. After getting two tricks in that suit, Mr. Dale cashed the rest of his spades, then led a club. Two club tricks made it a 4-trick set.

All types of appliances

Looking At Life

BY ERICH BRANDEIS

For about 15 months, now, a local hardware store has been sending me monthly statements showing a credit balance of seven cents.

In other words, they have spent 45 cents in postage plus the cost of the stationery, so that I can have seven cents worth of their merchandise without paying anything for it.

I haven't the slightest idea how that credit originated. I haven't been doing any business with them for more than a year.

So, I am writing them a letter asking them to send me seven cents worth of nails or wire or anything else that can be had for that amount. At least I'll get a little surprise out of it.

However, it is not only this store which, with all the modern office appliances and gadgets, does business in a somewhat impractical way.

Like for instance my dear wife. I say "dear" advisedly. In the first place, she IS a dear. In the second place, she is going to read this before I send it to my syndicate. In the third place, it never hurts to pay your wife a little compliment.

This wife of mine is most unusual. I don't mean that she is any different from any other woman. I mean only that she is very different from the usual MAN. She has a great habit of doing comparison shopping. Let us take soap powder, for instance. Bonsignor's market in our town will sell "Puff, chlorophyll detergent" at 21 cents a box. The market down in Wilton, four miles from here, has a special sale at 20 cents. So she starts out for Wilton to save that one cent. But in the Wilton market, a friend tells her that she just bought the very same "Puff" at only 19 cents in Mediterranean -and -Red-Sea -Market and that she got two FREE large economy-size packages of matches as a premium. So she leaves the Wilton market -first, however, buying $2. worth of stuff -because you can't just run out of a store where everybody knows you -and drives down to Westport, five miles from Wilton.

Thus, to save two cents she covers 18 miles, spends about 40 cents for gas, oil and deterioration -and with the two cents saved, she buys an ice cream soda for 20 cents.

No man would have the nerve to tell his wife that this sort of economy is not really economy at all, but plain waste.

The wife would immediately come back at him pointing out all sorts of ways in which HE wastes his money. Just as a couple of days ago, when I had my car washed. She couldn't see the necessity for washing it at all. To her it was as clean as a whistle. But to me it was filthy.

So I DID have it washed. An hour later it started to rain just as it always does when I have it washed. All day long my wife walked around with Mona Lisa smile. Not that she SAID anything -only that smile!

Finally I couldn't stand it any longer.

"My," I said, "we certainly needed this rain. Look how much nicer the town looks!" "Yes," she replied, "too bad you had your car washed and wasted all that money."

SAYS REDS WANTED MONEY PLATES

FORMER RED spy queen Elizabeth Bentley (left) testifies before a Senate subcommittee that she was instructed by the Communist underground to work through U. S. Government employees to get currency plates to be used in making counterfeit German marks. She said she was asked to contact Nathaniel Gregory Silvermaster (right) to help obtain the plates. Silvermaster refused to answer questions about her testimony.
